

The do's and don'ts of dining with us

Don't expect to stay out until late. There is a strict curfew in place, last drinks at 9.40pm at the very latest.

Don't expect to wander about, or to order at the bar. Pubs, bars and restaurants must all stick to table service, whether serving inside or outside.

Do bring your mask. Although you won't be asked to wear them while sitting down to eat and drink (for obvious reasons), the restrictions mean you'll need to wear one whenever you're not at your table. This includes when you're being shown to your table on entrance, and when you're using the bathrooms. It is now be mandatory for us to wear masks/shields too.

Don't expect to meet all your mates at once. The "rule of six" means that restaurants cannot permit bookings of more than six people at a table, either indoors or outdoors

Don't expect to mingle with other tables. You're also not allowed to book more than one table, and mingle between the two. The gov.uk website also says that you should, "avoid social interaction with anyone outside the group you are with, even if you see other people you know."

Do expect to check-in with the NHS Track and Trace app. Everyone is now required to: those without a smart phone will need to give over their name and contact details.

Do make reservations. Social distancing measures mean we have fewer tables.

Do wash your hands – we have dispensers placed strategically around the premises

If you are outside and the heavens open, don't expect to just head indoors, all our tables are probably reserved but you are welcome to check with us.

Don't worry about the loo – just remember – wear your mask and we have a one-in, one-out policy.

Do enjoy yourself, just don't overdo it. Things are set to look a fair bit different, follow whatever advice out there – it's for your own safety, after all
